

Full Understanding of the All

Sabbapariññā Sutta (Iti 7)

Vuttañhetam bhagavatā vuttamarahatāti me sutam:

“Sabbam, bhikkhave, anabhijānam aparijānam tattha cittaṃ avirājayam appajham abhabbo dukkhakkhayāya. Sabbañca kho, bhikkhave, abhijānam parijānam tattha cittaṃ virājayam pajham bhabbo dukkhakkhayāya”ti.

This was said by the Blessed One, said by the Arahant, as I have heard:

"Monks, without directly knowing and fully understanding everything, without detaching the mind from it and abandoning it, one is incapable of ending suffering. But, monks, by directly knowing and fully understanding everything, detaching the mind from it and abandoning it, one is capable of ending suffering."

Etamattham bhagavā avoca. Tatthetam iti vuccati:

The Blessed One said this. In this connection, this was said:

“Yo sabbam sabbato ñatvā, sabbathesu na rajjati; Sa ve sabbapariññā so, sabbadukkhakupaccagā”ti.

"One who has known the All from all around, and is not stirred by passion for anything at all: having fully understood the All, he has gone beyond all suffering."

Ayampi attho vutto bhagavatā, iti me sutanti.

Sattamam.

This matter too was spoken by the Blessed One, as I have heard.

(Seventh)

Glossary

Pāli (IAST)	Target transliteration	Target gloss	First-chapter occurrence	Goenka-tradition usage
sabba	sabba	the All; everything	Full Understanding of the All	Expounded by the Buddha as the six internal sense bases (eye, ear, nose, tongue, body, mind) and their corresponding six external objects.
abhiñāṇa	abhiñāṇa	directly knowing	Full Understanding of the All	Directly experiencing and knowing truth through one's own practice, as opposed to intellectual or theoretical knowledge.
pariñāṇa	pariñāṇa	fully understanding; comprehending	Full Understanding of the All	The deep experiential comprehension of the nature of phenomena (impermanence, suffering, and not-self).
virājaya	virājaya	detaching; fading passion	Full Understanding of the All	The gradual process where passion and craving for sensory objects fade away as a result of equanimity (upekkhā).

Pāli (IAST)	Target transliteration	Target gloss	First-chapter occurrence	Goenka-tradition usage
sabbapariññā	sabbapariññā	full understanding of the All	Full Understanding of the All	The absolute comprehension and relinquishment of attachment to all sensory experiences, leading to liberation.

Translator Notes

1. The All (Sabba): In the Sabba Sutta (SN 35.23), the Buddha defines "the All" as the six senses and their objects. Nothing exists outside this experiential framework, and this is where Vipassana practice is applied.
2. Direct and Full Knowing (Abhijāna / Parijāna): Represents two levels of insight: abhijā is the initial direct observation of sensations, and parijā is the mature, comprehensive understanding of their impermanent nature (anicca).
3. Fading of Passion (Virāga): Rather than a forced suppression, virāga is the natural consequence of observing sensations with equanimity, which automatically cools the fire of reaction.